NOVEMBER 2018

A HUMBLE REFLECTION

Bishop Eric Matsumoto

Honpa Hongwanji Mission of Hawaii, Office of the Bishop, would like to express our loving thoughts and condolences to those who are, directly and indirectly, most affected by the tragedy at the Tree of Life Synagogue in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania which took 11 precious lives. At this time, let us avail ourselves to All-Inclusive Wisdom and All-Embracing Compassion for guidance and comfort.

In the Smaller Sukhavativyuha Sutra, it mentions the Chaotic period of the Five Defilements in which tainted views, rejection of moral laws and the Law of cause-conditions-and-effect and an increase in anger, greed and ignorance arise, to name a few. Once again, we are made to painfully acknowledge that we live in a world in which confusion and chaos abounds and immense suffering prevails as we must confront the tragedy which struck on October 27, 2018. As we deal with the shock, loss and grief, may we seek guidance in the Wisdom of Enlightenment so that we may all understand the oneness of all Life and may we seek assurance in Unconditional Compassion so that we are motivated to non-violent ways and inspired by the saying from the Dhammapada "Hatred is not overcome by hatred. Hatred is overcome by love. This is an ancient truth."

On November 1, 2018, a special "Prayers for Pittsburgh" was held at Temple Emanu-El Honolulu to which a very diverse cross section of the community gathered to express sympathy and also show support for the Jewish Community. It was a service to honor those who were killed and also a time to comfort to those most affected according the Rabbi Ken Aronowitz. At the Service, prayers to the Divine were offered, the 11 individuals were dearly remembered and a touching Muslim response was also shared. Amidst the sorrow and sadness, there was also encouragement on how to transition from the grief and loss. As part of the Service, "When I Die" was read. In part, it reads "When I die give what's left of me away...And when you need me, put your arms around anyone and give them what you need to give me...Love doesn't die, people do. So when all that's left of me is love, Give me away." I was most touched by it. This reading tries to transform the tragic loss of life and its affect into something which helps to positively transform other people's lives. For me, as Jodo Shin Buddhist, I thought, it would be referring to the Love or Compassion of Amida Buddha which I find embracing me or the Nembutsu, Namo Amida Butsu that is recited in Awareness, Joy and Gratitude.

A constant theme throughout the evening was hope. That, one day, there would be peace, harmony and contentment for all people. Despite the challenges we face living in samsara we must not give up. Just as Great Compassion or Love has not given up on us, we must have hope. As we find in our Jodo Shinshu's, The Golden Chain of Love, "I will try to think pure and beautiful thoughts, to say pure and beautiful words, and to do pure and beautiful deeds knowing that on what I do now depends not only my happiness or unhappiness, but also that of others. May every link in Amida Buddha's Golden Chain of Love be bright and strong and may we all attain Perfect Peace." The source of our hope is Wisdom and Compassion and our endeavor towards a more peaceful and harmonious world is our grateful response to that Wisdom and Compassion.

Namo Amida Butsu/Entrusting in the Buddha of Immeasurable Life and Infinite Light.

In gassho,

Eric Matsumoto, Bishop

BUDDHIST WOMEN'S ASSOCIATIONS IN ACTION

BWA members around the state have been busy making the biennial theme "Dharma-Centered Leadership in Action" visible in their communities. As the Uniteds held their fall meetings and installed new slates of officers, they also featured the many things they do to make their communities more connected and caring.

On October 6th, the Oahu United BWA sponsored a panel, "Changing Dynamics of Buddhist Women: Their Needs, Talents and Passions." Speakers were Kano Hashimoto of Wahiawa Hongwanji, a recent PBA graduate; Caroline Otani of Pearl City Hongwanji, an attorney and mother of two, and Rev. Yuika Hasebe of Hawaii Betsuin. They spoke of the friendships among women of the BWA and the importance of discovering and contributing your own skills and talents.

On October 14th, Kauai United members honored their ministers, Rev. Kaufmann, Rev. Hojo, and Rev. Majima, with a surprise appreciation ceremony. They presented the ministers with a lei and a gift card and then serenaded them with a special song, "Thank You," which was adapted by BWA member Gladys Fujiuchi. For Veteran's Day, they will be hard at work on their annual Lonesome Graves Project.

On October 21st, Hawaii Island United BWA held their 64th Annual Convention at Puna Hongwanji. Mayor Harry Kim spoke of growing up in Ola'a (now Keaau) and of the importance of the Puna Hongwanji as a community center. Tracy Tsuha, president of Honomu Hongwanji, spoke of his experiences as a child growing up with connections to Honomu Hongwanji and of his journey back as an adult. Displays throughout the hall showed the many connections that the Big Island United has to the community. They are promoting the Blue Zones concepts of healthy eating, exercise, and community. They are also collecting donations to alleviate suffering in their community caused by the many natural disasters which have hit recently.

On November 3rd, Maui United held their annual Fall Assembly. They honored their ministers with beautiful lei made by member Sharon Nohara. Vietnamese Buddhist Nuns from the Buddhist Study Center in Kahului were invited to the meeting. Maui BWA members are looking forward to working with these nuns on future projects. Their Dana Award was given to Malama Recovery Center, an agency that works with substance abusing women. Maui members also brought towels, backpacks, sheets and other necessities to be shared with community agencies.

On November 19th, members of Honolulu United will be visiting Kahauiki Village, a new plantation-style housing project for the homeless on Oahu. They will present a Dana Award to Duane Kurisu in support of this project.

Interested in all of the community service that the BWA is embracing? We welcome new members at whatever level you are able to participate. See your temple BWA president for more information.
